The bill Senator Wellington has drawn up has the endorsement of the Navy Department. It authorizes the President to appoint two vice admirals; and the order of appointment would be Sampson and Schley. But the friends of Schley object to this. Schley's friends in the Senate insist that he justly ranks Sampson, and as the two now stand he does. Therefore, as a friend of Schley said today, it is doubtful if the bill to revive the grade of Vice Admiral could pass the Senate unless assurance was given from the Administration that for hlm. The bill Senator Wellington has given from the Administration that Schley's name would precede that of Sampson. While these nominations were held up the Naval Personnel bill became a law, and through the operation of that act Schley retained his relative position ahead of Sampson in spite of the machinations of the Bureau of Navigation. SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

"Boydville," the historic old home of th Boyds and the Faulkners, in Martinsburg V. Va was the scene of a brilliant nup tial event last evening, when Miss Jane Winn Faulkner, eldest daughter of former Senator and Mrs. Charles James Faulkner was married to Dr. William White, Nashville, Tenn. Both the exterior and interior decorations were unsually elaborate and artistic. The entire front of the ouse,including the porch, was a mass of fairy lamps. The spacious hall and rooms were festooned with trailing pine and holly relieved with cut flowers, white and pini being the prevailing colors, and arrange ments of palms and other potted plant filled every available space. Incandescent lights and many wax candles furnished the illumination. An orchestra of nine pieces, stationed on the upper staircase, rendered the wedding music from "Lohengrin." Ribbons were stretched from the rear of the hall, where the bridal party formed, and were held by little Misses Lillian Harrison, Virginia Fuller, Sadie Harrison, Elizabeth Hudgins, Douglas Fuller, jr., and Whiting Faulkner.

The ceremony was performed in the par-ler of the residence beneath a canopy of smilax, studded with pink roses. The bride entered isening on the arm of her father, who gave her hand in marriage. She was preceded by the groomsmen, bridesmaids, and maid of honor in the order named. The groom, attended by his best man, met the bride in front of a prie-dieu, where the seremony was impressively performed by Rev. Dr. F. M. Woods, pastor of the Pres-byterian Church here, assisted by Rev. Dr. T. Dewitt Talmage, of this city. The maid of honor was Miss Sallye W.

Views of Mr. Fairchild, Former Secretary of the Treasury.

Address Delivered Before the American Economic Association at Ithnes-Publicity as to Corporate Enraings and Expenses Suggested. Ideas About Increases of Capital.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 29.-The sessions were resumed today. The feature of the day was a speech by former Secretary of the Treasury Fairchild on the "Financing of Trusts." Mr. Fairchild said in part:

"During the processes which I have de scribed, underwriting syndicates have probably been employed to make sure that a sufficient amount of securities shall be sold to secure the cash needed, and there have loaned the money needed, pending the final launching of the new company, and may also have been employed to bring out its securities-that is, offer them for subscription by the public. Syndicates and bankers must be paid their commissions out of the surplus securities.

"Perhaps a concrete illustration may help toward a clearer understanding of Just how this part of the financing of these combinations is managed.

"Let us assume that the promoter has secured options upon the plants, assets, and good will of ten separate manufacturing concerns, for which he is to pay, under the terms of his options, $3,000,000 in cash and $5,000,000 in preferred stock and $4,000,000 in common stock of a new commany of $20. in common stock of a new company of $20,-

A reception followed the ceremony, and this was attended by many persons who were not present at the nuptials. The guests passed to the dining-room, where an rally done by submitting copies of a syndiclegant collation was served.

The bride received a large collection of handsome and valuable presents, including a variety of jewelry, silverware, cut-glass articles and pictures. The groomsmen presented her with a cut-gass punchbowl and five dozen glasses. Her father gave her their respective names, receiving as a five dozen glasses. Her father gave her their respective names, receiving as a negregate subscription equal to the tases of preferred stock set opposite their respective names, receiving as a magnetic set of the subscribtheir respective names, receiving as a borns an equal amount of common stock— but the whole conditioned upon there being an aggregate subscription equal to the

which the new company was to acquire.

"Then by simultaneous transactions John Doe gets the $10,000,000 preferred stock and $9,995,000 common stock; of this, $5,000,000 of the preferred and $4,000,000 of the common stock is passed on to the owners of the original companies; $4,000,000 of each is passed to the syndicate, whereupon it turns over to John Doe the $4,000,000 in cash, which he in turn uses to pay the cash required by the options and that which is to go into the treasury of the new company; at the same time the titles to the various properties are passed to the new company; at the same time the titles to the various properties are passed to the new company. John Doe then finds himself, after turning over to the banking house which formed the syndicate the 5,000 shares of common stock agreed upon as commission for its services, the possessor of 14,500 shares of common stock of the par value of $1,495,000.
"As to the effect upon the money market of all these new securities, it is hard to say. It must be remembered that the great bulk of them is in the hands of the owners of the original constituent properties. It must

"As to what proportion the one bears to the other, there are no data to be had. At a venture, however, I would say that there is little, if any, more money loaned now upon the shares of the new industrial com-binations than there would be now loaned upon the business paper of the constituent concerns had the combinations not been formed."

Concluding, Mr. Fairchild says: "A great help and safeguard would be some well-de-vised plan of publicity as to corporate earnings and expenses."

THORITE IN THE ARMY.

Why the Explosive Was Not Used in

The history of the attempted adoption of thorite in the army is interesting. Incidentally it discloses another army controversy and a clash of opinion between General Miles and General Buffington, the Army Chief of Ordnance. Some weeks ago General Miles recommended that thorite be used in the military operations in the Philippines and asked for the detail of an army officer to proceed to Manila with the inventor. Dr. Tuttle.

The order was issued and the officer cam to Washington to consult with the ordnance officials in regard to the establishment of a plant in the Philippines for the manu-facture of this explosive and its distribufacture of this explosive and its distribution to the troops.

General Buffington is said to have secured the revocation of the order on the ground that such a scheme endangered the life of the inventor, whose services at this time could not be spared.

It was regarded by the ordnance officers as important that Dr. Tuttle should be brought to the East from his home on the Pacific Coast to supervise the manufacture of the explosive at Sandy Hook, where limited facilities have been provided. There is little chance, therefore, that the army will soon be furnished with thorite, as the work at Sandy Hook is largely experimental.

A CURIOUS CLIMATE.

Water Freezes Every Night at Alto (From the Chicago Record.)

At Alto Crucero water freezes every night of the year, and the thermometer frequently falls 6, 8, and 10 degrees below zero. There are no facilities for artificial heat—not even a fireplace—and people keep themselves warm by putting on ponchos and other extra wraps. Mr. Grundy, who has charge of the smelter at Maravillas, says that this winter the thermometer has frequently fallen to 8 degrees below zero in the sitting room of his residence, but the family has felt no discomfort from the lack of stoves and furnaces, and has sat around the evening lamp reading and chatting just as is customary at ordinary tem-
